Day 1	Unit 1: Expedition Lesson 1: Listen and Speak	➤ improve speaking skills ➤ improve listening skills ➤ develop vocabulary related to expedition ➤ introduce 'just done' for recent actions ➤ practice questions and replies	textbook, notebook, writing board,	Introduction: Ask the students to open books and look at the pictures to develop interest. Write the word "Expeditions" on the board and let them guess its meaning. Take their ideas and then explain and write the explanation on the board. "A journey undertaken by a group of people with a particular purpose especially that of exploration, research, or war." Explanation: Ex A: Tell the students that the people shown in the pictures on page 2 tell that they have gone on an expedition to a camp site and they are going to make a camp. They have plans to stay there for some days. For this purpose, they are using different kinds of expedition equipment. Make the students understand the use of "has just done". Tell them this is used to explain recent actions. Go through the pictures one by one. Ask volunteer students to read the sentences aloud and ask the class to repeat the sentences. Explain vocabulary as you go along. For example: spade, hammer, coin, cliff, clothes line etc. Ask the students to write letter number A-H. This will help them identify each picture. Ask the students to cover the sentences down the middle of the page with a ruler. You may ask questions like: Picture A: What has the boy just done? Picture B: What has the woman just done? Now put the students in pairs and let them ask and answer the questions in turn. Make sure that the students follow SOPs. Ex B: Divide the class into groups and name them Group A & B and so on.... Ask the students to close their books and start this game. Tell them they are going to act like the pictures they have seen. One team is going to act and other is going to guess what they are doing. For example: "ow to show she's just hit her finger. Hurrah to show he's just found a coin etc" Do a mime in front of the class for example: 'you are trying to light fire' and let the students guess what action you are trying to do. First tell them what they are going to do. "Mime means conveying emotion without words, using only gesture, expression, and movement." Ex C: Instruct your group A to ask some questions given in the ex. from other group B and they will answer it. Then other group will take their turn. The students can ask some other questions as well. For example: "Can I borrow your ruler? Can I borrow this book? Can we go to the park? etc" Observe the class activity. Do not correct their language mistakes during this session. The purpose of this activity is to encourage oral fluency. Wrap up: Encourage the students to share their experience of an expedition like camping, hiking etc. Home Work: The students will do the worksheet in homework. Make sure to discuss it in the classroom.

Day 2	Unit 1: Expedition Lesson 2: Words	➤ discuss the equipment used in different expeditions ➤ improve speaking skills ➤ learn and practice plural countable compound nouns	textbook, notebook, writing board	Introduction: Ask the students to share what equipment they would take with them if they are going to go on a camping expedition. Encourage them to participate in the oral discussion, take their ideas and then link the discussion with the topic. Explanation: Ex A: Show the picture of the can opener to the students and ask them to name it and tell what it is used for. You can also take it with you as well. Similarly do this for other words and take the students' opinion. Now go to the page 110 and read the words aloud in random order. Pause after each word so that the students have time to find and point to it. This activity encourages the students to associate the written word and its pronunciation. Speak out the name of the object with correct and accurate pronunciation and accent. Explain them what are these objects used for. Repeat the same steps with other words. Ask them to repeat the words after you with correct pronunciation. Ex B: Make the students sit in pairs tell the students to read out each sentence twice. Give them some time to ponder on. Associate this exercise with their previous exercise. Ask them to solve it on their own. Listen to them and give your feedback. Ex C: Read the questions and the speech bubbles aloud. Write the speech bubbles on the board to show their full and contracted forms: for an expedition, I would (I'd) take a backpack. I would (I'd) also take a torch. Now ask the students to share which objects you would take if you are going to an expedition into the mountain. Take their response and instruct them to use words from the above exercises as well. Now divide the students into groups and assign them expeditions and take their responses. Listen to them and then give your feedback. Study Corner: Introduce plural countable compound nouns to the students by giving examples and a short definition. Tell them the plural is normally made by the addition of '-s'. Most compound nouns contain at least one noun. The other word or words may be an adjective, preposition, or verb. Like can opener, bus stop etc. But there are some other compound nouns which are made up of two nouns i.e train station, compact discs. Wrap up: Wrap up the lesson by asking the students on which of the expeditions discussed and read in the lesson they would like to go on. The students should be encouraged to give their reasons also. Home Work: The students will revise Ex B in homework.

Day 4 80 mins	Unit 1: Expedition Lesson 3: Reading: Lost in the Desert	➤develop reading skills ➤learn new vocabulary words ➤answer the comprehension questions ➤introduce closed passages	textbook, notebook, writing board, worksheet	Introduction: Read the title of the lesson ‘Lost in the Desert’ and ask the students to guess what the story can be about. They can also take hints from the pictures shared on the pages 4-5. Take their reviews and give our feedback. Methodology: Ex A&B: Tell them that the following story is an expedition diary written by the aviator who went to an aerial tour to Ghadames. (place where Algeria, Libya and Tunisia meet in Sahara). You can show the place using a map for their better understanding. Now ask a volunteer students to read the story and discuss it with the class. Make sure the students pronounce the unknown words correctly and they know the meanings as well, such as: single-propeller, aviator, splutter, journal, sweat out, swallow, mirage, Bedouin, dromedary, muddled etc. After discussing the Part A and Part B of the story you may ask questions like: 1. What happened to the air-men’ plane? 2. What was their first important decision? 3. What is mirage? 4. How do you define ‘dromedary’? Ex C: Ask the students to re-read the text and answer the questions. You can divide questions among the students. Read out the questions and ask students to answer them. Correct the answers while listening and ask the students to write only the answers to the questions neatly in their notebooks. Ex D&E: First read all the given extra sentences (a-f) and then ask them to add to the points in the story marked 1-6. Now ask them to match the sentences (a-f) to the phrases mentioned in Ex E. Wrap up: Wrap up the lesson by asking the students to share the answers to the related questions: 1. Which three decisions did they make later? 2. Do you think these were wise decisions? Home Work: The students will do the worksheet. Make sure to discuss it in classroom.

Worksheet

Topic: Lost in the Desert

Class: V

Name: _____

Date: _____

- Read the passage carefully and write down the words in place of their meanings:

In the day-time, the upper layer of the sand shone and glittered like a lake. We both knew it was a pretending to be a lake. (Later) I feel weak and sleepy. My heart is beating faster and I'm breathing speedily too. This is the start of the end, I fear. I think I can hear a cock crow, as first light of the day approaches. I stop, stoop my head to one side and listen. Surprisingly, Habib does the same, then looks at me. We both heard the cock crow, messenger of a new day, and perhaps the welcome sign of a fertile region. A desert dweller appears over the top of a hill, leading an Arabian camel by a rope. He looks at us in amazement.

In the day-time, the surface of the sand shone and sparkled like a lake. We both knew it was a mirage. (Later) I feel faint and sleepy. My heart is beating faster and I'm breathing rapidly too. This is the beginning of the end, I fear. I think I can hear a cock crow, as dawn approaches. I stop, bend my head to one side and listen. Strangely, Habib does the same, then looks at me. We both heard the cock crow, messenger of a new day, and maybe the welcome sign of an oasis. A Bedouin appears over the top of a hill, leading dromedary by a rope. He looks at us in astonishment.
